Lauds Women for Leading Way in Missionary Work

Sunday was women's missionary day at the First Christian church. Mrs. J. H. Payne was in charge of the program. Music included an anthem by the choir and a duet, "Face to Face," by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hoyer. The scripture lesson was read by Mrs. C. W. Allen and prayer offered by Mrs. E. A. Gilliland. The pastor, the Rev. E. A. Gilliland, gave a short talk in which he commended strongly the efforts of women in church missionary work.

"We used to laugh at these women who were giving 10 cents a month for missions," said the minister, "but they have taught us that giving even a small sum systematically counts big when thousands are doing it. The women have taught the men of the churches how to expend missionary funds to the best advantage. Under our new missionary organization plan, men are invited to join the missionary society in each church, and women sit in the front row of the church."

New officers elected a week ago were in charge of the Bible school as follows: James Payne, superintendent; Mrs. A. Gilliland, assistant superintendent; junior department, Mrs. J. G. Weaver; primary department, Mrs. John Jarvis; beginners department, Mrs. J. A. Jones; women's department, Mrs. J. A. Jones; A. H. Baldock, secretary; Thomas Reed, treasurer; Miss Esther Moore, pianist; G. D. Borgman, assistant pianist. Miss A. Foster, Lloyd Hesse played a violin solo during the closing exercises of the Bible school.

Church officers have been elected as follows: Elders, J. H. Fisher, E. L. Spencer, O. A. Brown; deacons, John Foster, W. S. Morford, William Dunphy, M. C. Smith, Charles Lloyd, A. H. Baldock; Roy Church, Roy Fredendahl, Sherman Brown, John Jarvis, James Payne, J. G. Weaver; trustees, J. H. Fisher, E. L. Spencer, O. A. Brown; treasurer, Roy Fredendahl; financial secretary, Mrs. Morton Smith; pianist and director of music, G. D. Borgman.

The new board will meet to organize and discuss plans for the coming year, Tuesday night at 7:30.

If I Could Install Electric Wiring—

A MOST every house is equipped with electricity these days. But how often we find we could use a plug here or an extra connection there. It's just a little job, but it takes a full-fledged electrician to do it.

Now, if I could install electric wiring I know how I could develop a mighty fine "side" business. Knowing that at some time or other folks who employ electricity in their homes will want to make changes, there is a field for my work. I'd call 2500 and through a Janesville Gazette Want Ad column I'd tell the people of Janesville, Wisconsin, that I can install plugs and extra connections.

APOLLO THEATRE

MATINEE, 2:30
Tonight, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday
A Mad Whirl of Life, Love and Luxury!

Faster and faster whirled the merry-go-round—the merry-go-round of life in Vienna, the gayest, most colorful, most fascinating city on the face of the globe! More lavish, more riotous, more reckless was the pace of those who rode on merry-go-round, humming and spinning to the tune of love, life and luxury. Amid settings of regal splendor and majestic magnificence is portrayed the most beautiful, most powerful, the most exotic of love dramas ever told in literature or pictures.

HOLIDAY SHOPPING IS ON INCREASE

Change of Weather Needed, However, to Boom Local Sales.

While Mr. and Mrs. Average Man are rejecting over the delightful and unusual weather, the merchants are attributing the warm days to the lack of winter business. While Saturday was an exceedingly good business day in the various stores of the city, the shoppers are not buying winter clothing. Merchants carrying wardrobe lines are lamenting that the buyers are putting off the buying of coats and dresses until the weather demands a change in clothing.

Christmas shopping has been in progress ever since the stores first displayed their large exhibits of gifts. But much until Saturday, was just shopping, looking and looking some more. Since after all Christmas is primarily the children's day, toys are going fast. The toy displays this year are more unique than in other years, and consequently with much advertising have been lined up by the prospective receivers. Even those who believe in Santa Claus have not been above posting their names for the children's list, and such toys may be obtained.

Dealers in novelties and gift shops were unusually busy Saturday, disposing of much glassware, including the colored glass candles with the accompanying fancy sticks. While the larger, more expensive gifts have not been generally purchased, the smaller, less expensive ones, the most part being ordered or spoken for. Furniture dealers report that they are setting aside gorgeous suites and lamps for the festive season. Predictions from the business centers portend that this will be the best Christmas as far as buying is concerned in five years. But just a promise of a white Christmas is needed to bring more to the realization that the great day is nearer at hand than the weather indicates.

MESSAGE ON TAX REDUCTION SENT WITH THE BUDGET

such an alignment is becoming every day more and more necessary because of the influence which it will have upon the states and the other lesser subdivisions of our body politic.

Adjusted Compensation—In stating that a reduction in taxation carries with it an obligation not to embark upon an extraordinary expenditure program, I am not unmindful of the demand for adjusted compensation for soldiers of the World War, which would include among its beneficiaries the able-bodied of our veterans as well as for other citizens.

For the disabled veterans of the war and the dependents of those who feel the country can not do too much. It has already spent nearly two billions of dollars and is now spending nearly half a billion dollars yearly in their behalf. That obligation it must and will continue to fulfill in fullest measure. And it is one of the most important of the duties and privileges of the Chief Executive to minister to the wants and needs of these wards and creditors of the nation.

Argues Against Bonus—But the fit and able-bodied are offered the opportunity open to every other citizen. The government has no money to distribute to any class of its citizens that it does not take from the pockets of the people and the payment of a bonus to millions of our former soldiers could only be accomplished at a cost to the whole community, including the veteran themselves, far outweighing the benefits intended to be conferred. If I felt that a soldiers' bonus represented a great need and a proper obligation which should be fulfilled by this nation, I certainly would not make a recommendation which would be adverse thereto.

"We have now reached a point in our financial program where we can lighten the tax burden of the people, which is an added reason for taking a firm stand against any and all programs of spending that would tend to absorb the expected margin between receipts and expenditures."

Budget Sent to Congress—President Coolidge sent to both houses of congress the budget carrying a reduction of $275,000,000 in expenditures. The total receipts are placed at $3,653,762, 078 with expenditures of $3,298,060,144 and a surplus of $355,701,934. Based as is the budget on existing revenue laws the surplus would be wiped out should congress reduce taxation by the 300 million dollars recommended by Sec. Mellon and supported by the president.

$11,000 Subscribed to Church in Day

Incomplete reports from the canvassing committee of the Congregational church show that $11,000 in cash and pledges were obtained for the 1924 budget Sunday. Using an unusual method of raising funds, by which all members of the congregation were asked to come to the church instead of the canvassers going to their homes, resulted in gratifying results according to L. A. Markham, director in charge of the committee. Miss Gertrude Cobb, Miss Ruth Jeffries, Mrs. F. S. Sheldon, L. F. Bennett and W. W. Dale served on the committee.

Abolition of Pittsburgh Plus.

The first step in the abolition of the Pittsburgh Plus has been taken by one steel company of Chicago and a financial writer says that others will follow. Pittsburgh Plus has been an inexcusable addition to the cost of steel and, passed along to manufacturers needing steel in construction and production, has found its way in cost to be paid by the ultimate user. It has added, as has been shown in the arguments against the method in these columns, to the cost of agricultural implements and other articles in which steel enters.

Next to the abolition of the 12-hour day in the steel mills, the selling of steel in competitive markets will prove to be the greatest forward step of the decade in this industry. The movement against Pittsburgh Plus was not originally political though in later months it was grabbed as an issue by some of the politicians of Wisconsin and other states. It was not a matter to be regulated by law but one of education and public pressure. Without having a statutory enactment against it, the movement has arrived at a point where it is being abolished as a business principle.

The term Pittsburgh Plus means that all steel, no matter where made, is delivered plus the freight from Pittsburgh to the point of sale. Thus a mill in Chicago sells in Chicago to the consumer of steel billets or steel in any form, at a price based on the Pittsburgh market plus the freight from Pittsburgh to Chicago. No matter where the consumer bought the steel he pays the freight from Pittsburgh though there had been no freight and delivery is just around the corner. In that manner there was no advantage of location as against Pittsburgh and competition was practically eliminated.

Henry Ford says he might run for president if he could do so without a platform. He would probably stand on the running board.

Secretary Wallace Is Right.

Secretary Wallace demands a reduction of freight rates on wheat, in a special report made to the president. In addition the report analyzes the wheat situation in the primary wheat growing states and conditions contributing to the depression in wheat marketing. Urging an immediate reduction of 25 per cent in the freight rate on wheat, attention is called to the fact that the present rates are 45 per cent above those of 1913 and have not been adjusted to meet the falling prices in farm products. This reduction is not asked for some future time, but now. It is in harmony with the position of the Gazette which has referred in more than one article, to the wide discrepancy between freight rates on many products of industry and those of the farm. Secretary Wallace asks that an inquiry be made to establish the facts in this connection, so that in the adjustment, rates for wheat may be more in harmony with the price and other products may be made to pay on the same basis. The first step in aiding wheat to market—and there is much of it unshipped to seaboard or to elevators at mills or central marketing points—shall be the reduction in rates charged for marketing the grain.

Maryland has found its tobacco pool so successful with 73 per cent of the growers as members that it plans to widen its membership and next year expects to control almost the entire crop. The cooperative marketing feature has come to be the salvation of the growers and greater interest has been shown in the result this year than ever.

We have too many officials who refuse to pay the premiums on a policy in honesty.

The Death of Jim Monahan.

In the death of Hon. James G. Monahan, La Fayette county has lost a most estimable citizen. For over 30 years he was owner and editor of the Republican at Darlington and made himself felt with this weekly, with his forceful writing and regular participation in all the activities of county, district, state and national politics. Six years ago he defeated John M. Nelson for a congressional seat in the Third district and was in turn defeated in 1920. It may be said that he was prominent in all undertakings in which he was interested. In 1894 he was Grand Master of the Wisconsin grand lodge of Masons. There will be genuine regret at his passing away.

UNCLAIMED BANK DEPOSITS

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

Washington.—One of the most fascinating of buried treasure stories has again been brought to the public attention by the decision of the United States Supreme Court in a case involving bank accounts. Periodically, interest becomes aroused in those sums of money which lie unclaimed in the banks of the country and people begin to turn over in their minds the names of dead or missing relatives who might possibly have accumulated bank funds and died without specifically bequeathing them to anybody.

In a country as large and populous as the United States it is not surprising that there are millions of dollars in these unclaimed bank accounts. There are many persons with no families and no close relatives, and a few, even, who are practically without friends. Some such persons make wills bequeathing their money to public institutions or charities. Many others make no specific provision, and in consequence, when their days are ended, whatever sums they have in the bank go unclaimed.

Some persons make mistakes in calculating their bank balances. They are under the impression that they have drawn all their money from a certain bank but they have made an error ranging from a few dollars to several hundreds. There are others so wealthy and so careless about their money affairs that they actually forget in what banks they have put money. The story has been told that a rich automobile manufacturer not long ago discovered that he had a deposit of $2,000,000 in a Canadian bank. He had completely forgotten the existence of the money and it was brought to his attention only by chance.

Perhaps the most fruitful source of abandoned deposits is accounts of men who die suddenly. A man's family or business connections may have no knowledge of some new account which has been opened by him. He may be killed in a railroad or automobile accident or die suddenly from heart failure or some such natural cause. No one connected with him personally has any knowledge of his newly opened account.

Still another source is secret, personal accounts. Many men maintain what they call their play accounts. In one account they keep the money for their necessary expenses. In another they will deposit surplus earnings which they regard as over and above their personal budget calculations. Such sums they may feel free to spend in favorite sports, in gifts, charities, or gambling. The man who keeps this sort of an account will be secretive about it in all probability. He will not want his business associates or, perhaps, even members of his family to know that he has this extra money to finance his playful moods. Consequently no record exists and when he dies, no one comes forward to claim the funds.

It is a weakness, or perhaps a strength, of the human mind that a man seldom expects death. The older a man grows the more inclined he is to feel that he is good for a few years more. He, therefore, seldom takes precautions to arrange for the disposition of such funds.

All these may seem strange causes for the accumulation of large sums of money but they have resulted in the building up of sums aggregating millions in the banks of the country. No one ever has calculated the precise amount and probably no one could as there is no way of gathering the information.

Many states have laws providing that if a bank account remains dormant for 20 years, the money reverts to the State government. The rule is that if no deposit is made, nor any check drawn against the account in 20 years, there is good reason to believe that the money has been abandoned. However, even though the account has lain dormant, if the bank has any reason of any sort whatever to believe the owner of the money is still alive, the rule does not operate. The 20 year period must run from the last deposit or check or from the last information that the depositor was alive.

In the recent case decided by the supreme court of the United States, the State of California, receiving notice that a large Los Angeles bank had an accumulation of such dormant deposits, entered suit to obtain the abandoned money for the state. The bank opposed the suit on the ground that it was trustee for the depositors and must continue to hold the money. After being fought through the state courts, the case went up to the supreme court of the United States which upheld the law and turned the money over to the state. If, however, within five years, some claimant comes forward and proves that he has a right to the money, he can recover it from the state. Banks earn money through making loans out of the funds deposited with them for safe-keeping. Most bank accounts are likely to go up and down constantly owing to the deposits and withdrawals made by the depositors. These dormant accounts are very advantageous to banks because they remain stationary. The bank keeps lending the money out at interest, year after year.

A large eastern institution more than a century ago started a bank which catered primarily to the sailors of New England. It is proverbial that no one throws his money away so freely as a sailor ashore, but there are exceptions to all rules. Many sailors do the reverse. Being of thrifty dispositions they save more than others because aboard ship there is not much opportunity to spend money. The sea-faring life is one of the most hazardous and while it is a proverb that a sailor has a sweetheart in every port, comparatively few sailors have wives and children. They are free, roving persons whose home is the whole world. Men put forth to sea and never come back. They leave no heirs and no beneficiaries. This particular institution obtained the savings accounts of great numbers of sailors and, in the natural course of events, large numbers were lost at sea. Every 20 years it had to turn over to the state the accumulated abandoned deposits but the intervening two decades it made good use of the money and became very rich. It is now one of the richest banks in the country.

Occasionally some promoter attempts to organize a business of finding missing heirs and recovering these abandoned accounts, but much proof is required to establish first that the original depositor is dead and second that the claimant is the rightful heir.

There is scarcely a bank in the country that does not have a share of this buried treasure—buried in the vaults and on the ledgers of the institutions.

It is not made. See that the trees are saved. It is one of the city's greatest assets but like the river front, trees are being neglected and beauty taken away by wholesale trimming.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

THE CHRISTMAS URGE

"Get busy! Get busy!" A little voice cries. The voice of my conscience, appealingly wise. "Get busy, you shirker! Get down to the deed! It's time to be earning the money you'll need. Thanksgiving is over and Christmas is gay and And you must have dollars for bagies and drums."

"Already the toy shops with marvels are stored, Displaying the wondrous you'll wish to afford. You know how you gaze at the treasures and sigh."

"As you turn from a plaything too costly to buy, Get busy! Get busy! Now Christmas draws near."

"Last year, you remember, you stood in a store And counted your dollars and wished you had more."

Bewildered and dazed, you looked at the toys And hungered for money to purchase such joys. Well, Christmas is coming—get busy again. Or you'll see some trinket you'll sigh for in vain."

"You know the lure of mechanical things. You know the sadness which poverty brings. You know the heartache, the depth of the sigh, As you gaze at some splendor you wish you could buy."

Get busy! Get busy! Or you'll miss the joys Of those who have dollars to squander on toys." (Copyright, 1923, by Edgar A. Guest)

WHO'S WHO TODAY

SEN. KEY PITTMAN.

Key Pittman, one of the principal leaders in the democratic organization in the senate, will play an important part in the doings of the sixty-eighth session of congress.

Pittman's political career is an unusual one because of the fact that he never had run for political office when he sought the Democratic election to the senate from Nevada in November, 1910. He was defeated then, but two years later was elected by popular vote to fill the unexpired term of Governor S. Dixon, deceased. The election was unanimously confirmed by the legislature.

Pittman was born in Vicksburg, Miss., Sept. 10, 1872. He was educated by private tutors and in Southern Presbyterian University at Clarksville, Tenn.

He commenced the practice of law in Seattle in 1892, but the northwest territory called him and from 1897 to 1901 he lived in the Klondike. For two years he worked as a miner. Then he served as counsel for a group of miners who charged corruption of government officials at Dawson.

Then he went to Nome and helped in the organization of a "consent" form of government for that territory and became the first district attorney there.

He was one of the leading members of the counsel which fought to prevent the carrying out of a conspiracy to rob the miners of their mines in 1901. That same year he moved to Tonopah, Nev., where he now lives.

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

Noted Physician and Author

VARICO SE ULCER

From the edges, much as a pond freezes over with a film of ice.

This pain and discomfort and disability produced by varicose ulcers are mostly unnecessary and must be accredited to willful neglect or avoidance of proper medical care in most cases.

Now it does seem strange that anybody should imagine that an ulcer should not be healed, doesn't it? I mean it seems strange if you haven't any such trouble yourself.

My dear Dr. Brady:

I have a large varicose ulcer on my leg from the ankle half way up to the knee. I suffer a great deal of pain and itching from it. My family doctor strongly advises me to have it cured, says it can be cured, and that after it is cured a rubber stocking will keep it from coming back.

Another mystery I despair of solving is, why do folks employ a physician, presumably paying a fee for his advice or attendance, and then neglect his advice regarding the gratuitous advice of "dozens of people?"

Every varicose ulcer can and should be healed. In a few cases, however, long and tedious treatment, and self-treatment, which amounts to the same thing, leads to the development of cancer in the site of the ulcer; then the chance of cure becomes problematic.

In saying that every varicose ulcer can be healed I do not mean to imply that I know of a specific cure or remedy or method of treatment.

The treatment I recommend is determined by the individual requirements in each case; I have nothing to send to readers about this. I mean to say, however, that every varicose ulcer can be healed by proper surgical treatment, such as any good physician is competent to apply. And by surgical treatment I do not mean any kind of operation, but a simple procedure in some cases a little intelligent operative treatment starts the healing process in a long indolent ulcer, for instance, the skillful (pathless) trimming down of every varicose vein (tissue) (proud flesh) which is preventing the flow of blood from growing in around the edges of the ulcer. An ulcer heals by a growth of skin over the ulcer.

Another mystery I despair of solving is, why do folks employ a physician, presumably paying a fee for his advice or attendance, and then neglect his advice regarding the gratuitous advice of "dozens of people?"

One Applicant for Power Rights in Wisconsin

Washington, D. C.—There was only one active application for waterpower license in Wisconsin in the fiscal year 1923, according to the annual report of the Federal Power commission which has just been made public. This one called for primary horsepower capacity of 14,430 and an estimated installed capacity of the same power. One hearing was held by the commission during the year on the condition application of the city of St. Paul and of the Northern States Power company for preliminary permits for projects on the St. Croix river in Minnesota and Wisconsin. A permit for this project was granted for three years to the St. Croix Falls Wisconsin Improvement company with a primary capacity of double the amount.
